From: Financial Times <email@email.ft.com>
To: ehbarak1@gmail.com
CC:
Date: Tue, 2/23/2016 4:51:12 PM
Subject: Mobile Technology - Special Report

To view online click here.

FINANCIAL TIMES Special Report

Mobile Technology

Why a new generation of digital infrastructure is needed to support an ever more connected future. Plus ad-blocking 'extortion', brain training with mobile games, the race to set the standard for 5G and the afterlife of the 'dumb phone'.

View this special report

What is a Special Report?

The FT produces special reports written by FT business experts. Each report provides a forensic assessment by country, region or industry sector plus big trends in finance, business and management.

Keep up to date on Twitter @ftreports

What's in this report?

Europe and Asia race to set 5G standard
Being first will bring in rich patent licencing payments

Telecoms networks are 'maxed out'
A radical change will be needed to create the internet of things

---

‘Dumb’ phones for the digitally weary
There is a small but busy market for old-fashioned handsets that just make calls

---

Media worried as ad blocking goes mobile
Software companies are accused of running an ‘extortion racket’

You're receiving this email as part of your FT.com subscription. If you no longer wish to receive details of products, services and promotional offers from the Financial Times please click here.

This email was sent to ehbarak1@gmail.com . We take your privacy seriously, to read our Privacy Policy click here. If you have any customer service queries or questions about your subscription please contact us.

We use pixels in HTML emails (not in plain text emails) to tell us if the email is opened or links in it are clicked on. The pixel will be deleted if you delete the email. See our cookie policy for more information.

This email was sent by a company owned by Financial Times Group Limited (FT Group), registered office at Number One Southwark Bridge, London SE1 9HL. Registered in England and Wales with company number 879531.